

Matthew Coons, Secretary

Matt Coons is an IT incident responder and threat analyst at the University of Michigan (U-M). Matt regularly completes digital forensic investigations, coordinates IT security incident investigations, and maintains U-M's threat intelligence capabilities. Matt is an active member of both the IT security and digital forensic communities. Matt is a member of the Michigan chapters of the Infragard and High Technology Crime Investigation Association (HTCIA).

Before joining U-M, Matt worked as an information security analyst for a large healthcare organization in Ohio. He holds a bachelor's degree in digital forensic science from Defiance College and is currently pursuing a Master's of Science in Information Security Operations from Champlain College. Matt is a GIAC Certified Forensic Analyst (GCFA) and Digital Forensics Certified Associate (DFCA). While at Defiance College, Matt assisted in the creation of the DFCA certification, and as a result, is recognized as one of its founders.
